

One day, Sarah went to the shops down the street, in search of a truly spectacular treat . . .

a gift for her gran that was totally great. (It's not every birthday you turn eighty-eight!) A store caught her eye with some fine golden gilding, where butterflies bustled and bobbed round the building.

And there, on the counter, a flytrap was looming, it spoke with a voice that was

SCARY and BOOMING.

With a grin so gigantic the plant might just eat her ...
